Excerpt: .till the Friday follow-ing; was taken amiss that evening, was soon speechless, and in a great measure senseless. On Saturday about three of the clock fell asleep (tis hopeful) in the Lord Jesus Christ. On the next Monday following, she was interred at Oyster Bay, the place of her nativity; and has left me to bewail an unspeakable loss. When I returned home and looked amongst her papers, the following lines to me (which must have been written near two months before her death) lay first in sight, and came first to hand: Dear partner of my earthly love, I quickly fi om you shall remove; My soul will take her hasty flight, To everlasting shades of night, Or to the endless realms of light. Mr. Wilmot was evidently a man distinguished for spirituality of mind and ardor of piety; and although he died young, it cannot be doubted that his ministry here was crowned with the happiest results; but what those results actually were, from the paucity of our records and the failure of tradition, cannot now certainly be known. In 17 40 it is evident Mr. Whitefield visited this place, and that his labours, as elsewhere, were greatly blessed to the awakening of numbers to attend to the salvation of their souls. The effect of his labours may be judged of by the following extracts from letters of Mr. Colgan, the Episcopal missionary here, at that time, to the Secretary of...
